Morning light crossed the quiet room, and the open window carried the scent of rain. A little bird rested near the garden while we made warm tea. We watched the clouds move beyond the trees and talked about the walk we would take later. Every small sound seemed clear in the still air. The day had only begun, and there was time to look closely at the ordinary things around us. Morning light crossed the quiet room, and the open window carried the scent of rain. A little bird rested near the garden while we made warm tea. We watched the clouds move beyond the trees and talked about the walk we would take later. Every small sound seemed clear in the still air. The day had only begun, and there was time to look closely at the ordinary things around us. Morning light crossed the quiet room, and the open window carried the scent of rain. A little bird rested near the garden while we made warm tea. We watched the clouds move beyond the trees and talked about the walk we would take later. Every small sound seemed clear in the still air. The day had only begun, and there was time to look closely at the ordinary things around us. Morning light crossed the quiet room, and the open window carried the scent of rain. A little bird rested near the garden while we made warm tea. We watched the clouds move beyond the trees and talked about the walk we would take later. Every small sound seemed clear in the still air. The day had only begun, and there was time to look closely at the ordinary things around us. Morning light crossed the quiet room, and the open window carried the scent of rain. A little bird rested near the garden while we made warm tea. We watched the clouds move beyond the trees and talked about the walk we would take later. Every small sound seemed clear in the still air. The day had only begun, and there was time to look closely at the ordinary things around us. Morning light crossed the quiet room, and the open window carried the scent of rain. A little bird rested near the garden while we made warm tea. We watched the clouds move beyond the trees and talked about the walk we would take later. Every small sound seemed clear in the still air. The day had only begun, and there was time to look closely at the ordinary things around us. Morning light crossed the quiet room, and the open window carried the scent of rain. A little bird rested near the garden while we made warm tea. We watched the clouds move beyond the trees and talked about the walk we would take later. Every small sound seemed clear in the still air. The day had only begun, and there was time to look closely at the ordinary things around us. Morning light crossed the quiet room, and the open window carried the scent of rain. A little bird rested near the garden while we made warm tea. We watched the clouds move beyond the trees and talked about the walk we would take later. Every small sound seemed clear in the still air. The day had only begun, and there was time to look closely at the ordinary things around us. Morning light crossed the quiet room, and the open window carried the scent of rain. A little bird rested near the garden while we made warm tea. We watched the clouds move beyond the trees and talked about the walk we would take later. Every small sound seemed clear in the still air. The day had only begun, and there was time to look closely at the ordinary things around us. Morning light crossed the quiet room, and the open window carried the scent of rain. A little bird rested near the garden while we made warm tea. We watched the clouds move beyond the trees and talked about the walk we would take later. Every small sound seemed clear in the still air. The day had only begun, and there was time to look closely at the ordinary things around us. Morning light crossed the quiet room, and the open window carried the scent of rain. A little bird rested near the garden while we made warm tea. We watched the clouds move beyond the trees and talked about the walk we would take later. Every small sound seemed clear in the still air. The day had only begun, and there was time to look closely at the ordinary things around us. Morning light crossed the quiet room, and the open window carried the scent of rain. A little bird rested near the garden while we made warm tea. We watched the clouds move beyond the trees and talked about the walk we would take later. Every small sound seemed clear in the still air. The day had only begun, and there was time to look closely at the ordinary things around us.